SMALL WORLD MUSIC

Founded in 1997, Small World Music is a leading cultural organization dedicated to promoting global music and cross-cultural artistic exchange in Canada.

Through festivals, concerts, artist development initiatives, and community programs, Small World Music has supported hundreds of artists from around the world and played an important role in strengthening Toronto's diverse cultural landscape.

The Small World Centre, opened in 2014, was created as a permanent home for these activities — a place where artists, audiences, and communities can gather to create and share music and culture.

The Sound of Home (video) commemorates a decade's journey of creating space for culturally diverse music and building community for the underrepresented artists in the city.
